The Happy Hen Interactive Role-play Murder Mystery

Join Henny Heartbeat on her hen night with her celebrity friends Amy Wino, Paris Milton, Tina Turncoat and many more for this role-play murder mystery where you play the characters and are all suspects in a MURDER case!

This story is set in 1920's Chicago and is ideal for private hen party groups of 10 to 25, everyone in your party plays a part. We personalise the event to the Bride and Groom and include your gossip. You and your guests will be cast before the event by your organiser with some tips on fancy dress costumes and when you arrive will be given your clue-packs and further information and clues throughout the event by Private Investigator Dick Pacy.

Some of the suspects will be interrogated by the PI during the event so keep your wits about you. You will also question fellow guests yourself. There's a prize of a bottle of bubbly for the super sleuth who discovers whodunit!

The event is facilitated by 1 or 2 professional actors and you and your guests role-play parts, suitable for groups of 8 to 25 guests.

Advantages:

- You witness the MURDER!
- Your Inspector guides you step by step through the game
- You play the suspects & sleuths
- You work as individuals to discover whodunit!
- Cluepacks and prizes included
- We find the venue for you and event manage on the night

"Just wanted to say that you guys did a fantastic job at the murder mystery on Saturday night. Karen, the hen, was amazed and really overwhelmed with the whole evening! I was really impressed and very happy with how everything went. Thanks so much for hosting a great evening and for all of your hard work. Hope to use you again soon!!" Gemma Miller, Maid of Honor

How does it work?

You and your guests are given parts to play and fancy dress guidelines before the event. You play the suspects over dinner guided by professional actors.

You are given written instructions during the event and you interact with the actor playing detective and each other. Intriguing riddles are revealed as the story unfolds. The winning person who deduces Whodunit receives a bottle of bubbly. Set around a 3 course meal or hot buffet, our team promise to make it an evening to remember!

Below is explained how a typical roleplay event runs. For private events you may choose the start time we recommend a drinks reception for either 7pm or 7:30pm. Advise all guests to arrive on time as we cannot start without all the suspects there!

Roleplay murder mystery dinners tend to run about 3 hours approximately, so with a 7pm start the event would finish at approximately 10pm.

Running Order:

- 7:00pm Drinks reception Meet at reception for pre-dinner drinks, where clue-packs and your character breakdowns are distributed. You get to know who's who- keep your wits about you so you don't miss a clue!
- 7:30pm Sit down for dinner Dinner is announced the guests take their seats; the two professional actors play out a dramatic scene, ending in who knows? Bloodshed?
- 7:45pm Dinner is served Each course is served and the comic plot unfolds. The actors guide you through, unveiling the story and its twists and turns. You might be questioned by the detective or reveal an important clue when questioned by a fellow guest during the main course! Word-games and Quizzes are introduced during the evening, which may reveal clues to who the murderer is!
- 9:15pm You solve the crime! Just before the dessert it's your chance to be a super sleuth and figure out whodunit! Then hand in your solution sheet in for judging, after which the dramatic denouement uncovers the dastardly villain whodunit! They may come to a sticky end...
- 9:45pm Prizes awarded The star prize of one bottle of bubbly is awarded to the winning person and a booby prize to the most absurd solution. But there's still a chance to win with our limerick competition, free prize draw and best fancy dress!
- 10pm End of event
